ORLANDO TOPS 50 MILLION

Orlando International Airport’s vibe of bursting at its seams has been officially confirmed with its latest announced passenger count at more than 50 million annually.

Reaching that milestone in October, that’s as many as every Orlando resident passing through the airport 280 times in a year.

“We could not be more pleased that we became the first Florida airport to hit such an incredible milestone,” airport director Phil Brown said.

But while 50 million passengers annually is the most of any Florida airport – and Orlando’s airport now ranks as the nation’s 10th busiest – the airport also is hosting about 5 million passengers a year more than it is designed to handle.

The only significant relief to crowding at Orlando International Airport is the construction of a $3 billion terminal at the south end of the airport campus. It’s slated to open in about two years, by which time...

James L. Tuttle, Jr. passed away peacefully at home in Acworth, Georgia on Friday, December 27, 2019, at the age of 77, after complications due to cancer.

Jim began his HNTB career in Kansas City as a Structural Bridge Engineer. He relocated to Atlanta and became the Chief Airport Engineer. He was the Project Manager of Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport's $410M Development Program from 1976 to 1982.

After 32 years with HNTB, Jim retired and joined his wife's firm, JAT Consulting Services, as a Management Consultant. An unequivocal expert in program and construction management, he provided valued assistance in business operations analysis, system reviews, and workable solutions to meet client needs.
